

Grounding & Managing Stress

Stress is a normal physical and emotional reaction to demanding life situations. High stress can manifest as muscle tension, fatigue, mild headache, or difficulty concentrating.

Practical Stress Grounding Techniques: - Grounding: Focus on your surroundings·notice 5 things you can see, 4 things you can touch, 3 things you can hear, 2 things you can smell, and 1 thing you can taste. - Slow Breathing: Breathe in slowly for 4 seconds, hold for 4 seconds, and exhale slowly for 4 seconds. - Physical Unhooking: Notice difficult thoughts without fighting them, and refocus attention on physical activities.

Building Emotional Resilience

Daily habits for emotional well-being: - Maintain social connection with family and supportive friends. - Engage in creative or enjoyable non-work activities daily.

Physical Movement for Stress Reduction

Gentle physical exercise releases endorphins and reduces muscle tightness associated with stress.

When Stress Symptoms Require Professional Support

If stress leads to persistent severe anxiety, panic attacks, or feelings of hopelessness, seek support from a healthcare professional or counselor.
